PROGRAM NOTES

Selection from StarCraft II: Legacy of the Void.....Jason Hayes and Michael Patti/Michael Story

The stunning soundtrack to one of the most popular video games is now available for your intermediate-level string orchestra. Michael Story's powerful arrangement of StarCraft II: Legacy of the Void contains four of its most memorable themes, including "The Stars Our Home," "The Fall of Shakuras," "Honor Guides Me," and "My Life for Aiur." This cutting edge music will thrill both your students and your audience!

Divertimento No. 1 in D Major, K. 136.....W.A. Mozart I. Allegro

Mozart composed the Divertimento, K. 136, during down-time in Salzburg in the winter of 1772, following two extended periods in Italy.

This Divertimento is in three movements, fast-slow-fast after the manner of the Italian sinfonia. (This work and its two companions have been described as Mozart's "Salzburg sinfonias"). The opening Allegro, in sonata form, centers around a delightful, charming theme that ends with an amusing little dynamic retreat. The development moves into the minor mode, surprising the listener with a second episode where a less-inventive composer simply would have recapitulated the opening theme.

A Song for Friends.....Larry Daehn/Kyoto Sila

A Song for Friends is a slow, lyrical piece which is excellent for teaching blend and melodic line. This exquisite arrangement for orchestra encourages performers to focus on making beautiful music together by providing a lovely melody, uncomplicated rhythms and smooth harmonies. A simple, moving tribute to friendship!

John Hardy Dances.....Traditional/Bob Lipton

"John Hardy" is a traditional American folk song based on the life of a railroad worker living in McDowell County, West Virginia in the Spring of 1893. The historical John Hardy is believed to have gotten into a drunken dispute during a craps game held near Keystone, and subsequently killed a man named Thomas Drews. Hardy was found guilty of murder in the first degree, and was hanged on January 19, 1894, with 3,000 people allegedly in attendance. Hardy is believed to have made peace with the Lord the morning before his death by being baptized in a river.

This arrangement of the folk tune John Hardy is set as a waltz and belly dance as well as in its original fiddle origins. Great for your second year group!

Strawberry Jam Session.....George T. Frueh

Strawberry Jam Session was inspired by the 1967 Buddy Rich Big Band song, "Big Swing Face." It is based upon a 12-bar blues pattern in the key of D Major. The main theme begins after a four-measure introduction and is played with unison rhythms. The second time through, the cello section is featured with two short solo lines. A "shout chorus" is then played which features a short call-and-response between the high and low strings and tightly-knit, chromatic harmonies. The song concludes with a three-times repeated phrase and then finally a classic D9 chord. The song can be played in the style of "Rock" or Swing."

--George T. Frueh

Emperor's New Clothes.....Francis Caravella

I wrote The Emperor's New Clothes during the summer of 2014 while living in a rented flat in Montpellier, France. It was a FIFA World Cup year and the city was bristling with excitement over the final showdown between Germany and Argentina. I had already been thinking about writing an arrangement of Haydn's famous "Emperor's Hymn," which had been adopted as the German national anthem in 1922. Germany's arrival in the final sparked the idea of combining the anthems of both teams into one piece.

The only problem was that Argentina's national anthem is not nearly as stirring or as beautiful as Haydn's masterpiece. Nor does it represent the country and people as well as the signature Argentinian musical genre, the tango. So, I substituted what is arguably the most famous tango ever written, Carlos Gardel's Por una cabeza. I began writing that morning and discovered rather quickly that these two pieces worked quite well together. By the time the start of the match rolled around, I had completed all but the very end of the piece. I had decided that the winner of the match would determine the ending of the piece!

Spoiler alert: Germany won the match 1-0. So, I finished the piece by quoting directly from the opening of Haydn's String Quartet, Op. 76, No. 3 ("Emperor") and moved on to writing my next piece. Later, I was encouraged by a fellow composer Todd Parrish to write a more stirring and triumphant rendition of the theme and that is the ending you hear in the published work. The title borrows from Hans Christian Anderson's famous tale to cheekily refer to "dressing up" the "Emperor's Hymn" as a tango.

---Francis Caravella

Czardas (Solo with Orchestra).....Vittorio Monti/Percy Hall

Czardas is a popular Hungarian dance of gypsy origin, and is widely used by composers such as Liszt, Brahms, Tchaikovsky, and Strauss. It is in duple meter, beginning with a slow introduction and followed by a rapid, wild dance where the women's traditional wide skirts form distinctive shapes when whirled. Avoid going too fast too soon, saving the fastest tempo for the ending. Dynamics are well marked, but it may be adjusted if needed.

Bass-ically Christmas.....James Lord Pierpont/Bob Phillips

The melodies for both songs were written by James Lord Pierpont and published in 1857 under the name "One Horse Open Sleigh." The "Jolly Old St. Nicholas" melody was later removed and the song became known as "Jingle Bells."

Arranged by Bob Phillips, the Bass-ically Christmas begins with the "Jolly Old St. Nicholas" with the basses playing the melody arco with a pizzicato accompaniment from the other sections. At the end of the melody (m. 24) there is a pause where the orchestra freezes in place while the bass players can put on Santa hats, sunglasses, or any other fun prop and, most importantly, project a cool attitude. Then the conductor loudly counts the orchestra back in to a swing pizzicato setting of "Jingle Bells." The piece builds to a strong conclusion with all sections joining in.

This cute, simple arrangement features the bass section and makes them sound great! Have some fun with this cool medley featuring Jolly Old St. Nicholas and Jingle Bells -it will brighten any holiday concert.

Deep River.....Spiritual/Carrie Lane Gruselle

Spirituals have many meanings for many people. They are expressions of hope, anguish, sorrow, joy, love, or anger, developed under a deep love of God, brotherhood, humanity, and redemption. They are expressions of an impressed people, dragged from their homes to a life of slavery in a far off land; yet they offer hope and show dignity, spirit and refinement.

"Deep River is an African American spiritual, one of the first spirituals to move from the realm of folk music to the concert stage as proper art music, thanks to the work of H.T. Burleigh, a late-18th and early 19th century African American composer. He brought to the public eye the depth and beauty of the spiritual through his published arrangements for solo voice and piano.

In this arrangement, students explore long, lyrical, expressive phrases. Musicians are encouraged to focus on tone production, clarity of sound, purity of intonation, and vibrato. Technical demands include slurs, accidentals, and minimal shifting in the bass and divisi violin 1 parts."

---Carrie Lane Gruselle

El Relicario: Paso Doble.....Jose Padila/Robert Longfield

The Paso doble is a dance and music based on the Spanish bullfight. It is the music played at bullfights at the procession of the bullfighters, between stages, and at the end of each session. The music is in binary rhythm and moderated movement. As a dance it is a two-step (paso doble = two step).

El Relicario: Paso Doble, written by José Padilla, is one of the most famous and best loved paso dobles ever written in a setting for string orchestra! Fiery rhythms and sweeping Spanish melodies make this an outstanding change of pace for concert or festival performance. Terrific!

Introduction and Allegro Op. 47 .....Edward Elgar

The Introduction and Allegro for Strings, Op. 47, was composed in 1905 for performance in an all-Elgar concert by the newly formed London Symphony Orchestra. Scored for string quartet and string orchestra, Elgar composed it to show off the tremendous virtuoso-technicalities within the players.

The piece opens with a tutti descending fanfare, which segues into a major-key moderato section, interspersed by an Allegretto e poco stringendo section consisting of two measures in length. Instead of a development section as would be expected in traditional sonata form, a new theme is introduced, a vigorous fugue in which the piece returns to the opening key of G minor. In a letter to his good friend A. J. Jaeger ("Nimrod" of the Enigma Variations), Elgar referred to this section as a "devil of a fugue". After the fugue concludes, the piece's themes are all recapitulated in G major, initially begun by a unison orchestra before dividing across echo between orchestra and solo quartet.

Though initial critical reception was lukewarm at best, the score soon came to be recognized as a masterpiece. The work, which is roughly twelve to fourteen minutes in length, is like a multi-layered symphonic poem for string orchestra, with several prominent themes.

Fiddle-Fiddle for String Orchestra.....Leroy Anderson

Fiddle-Fiddle is a musical composition in 2/2 time composed by Leroy Anderson. It is considered to be a "light" classical music composition, sometimes referred to as "classical pop" music and was published in 1947. Written in classic "song-and-trio" form, it is based on the childhood nursery song "Three Blind Mice." It was recorded many times in the late 1940s and early 1950s by a variety of musical ensembles. Prominently featuring the violins, as the title would imply, the opening and closing sections rely on rapid sixteenth note passages, followed by pizzicato playing in the trio. Anderson wrote the piece as one of many pieces commissioned over time by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra. The finished piece instantly became a favorite of audiences and Arthur Fiedler alike. Fiedler programmed it so frequently in Pops concerts that the audiences began referring to it as "Fiedler Fiddle."
